SEVERAL SABBATH SCHOOL SOCIETIES.

The Weather was Hot But the Congregations Were Good-What the Various Denominations are Doing in the City.

The temperature reached high water mark Sunday. It was the hottest day of the year, and yet undeterred by a merciless sun and heated atmosphere, the people turned out in force. The churches in the morning had good congregations, and full benches at all the evening services.

The Methodists.

Large congregations attended Broad-street church Sunday. The crowd at night was composed largely of strangers and visitors and nearly every seat was taken. Although the church organ is in course of repair and only a small instrument in use, the music was an attractive pair and only a small instrument in use, the music was an attractive feature of the interesting services. Anthems were sung by the choir, in which occur beautiful solos. These were rendered with rare sweetness by Miss Hundley and Mr. Galpin. Dr. W. V. Tudor, the pastor, is a preacher of great force and illustrative power, as well as considerable individuality of expression. He has a surprising vocabulary and a vein of refined humor, involuntarily effervescing at times in the midst of his sermon. His text Sunday morning was taken from the first epistle of Peter, first chapter, eighth verse, starting with the idea that the educated as well as the illiterate Christian mind longed for sight and contact with God. He described the power of the eye of faith and the love of the Christian for his unseen Master beautifully and feelingly. The picture of this manner of love and the recital of its component parts was intense, specific, thrilling. of its component parts was intense, specific, hev. W. H. Atwell, of Clay-street church, reaffirmed his reputation as an active en-getic preacher Sunday by preaching to large congregations morning and night, and in the interim riding sixteen miles and back from a funeral in the country.

Dr. Judkins, of Centenary, also had a busy day preaching twice and conducting two funeral services.

The tent services conducted by the members of this church are very successful.

Trinity Methodist Episcopal church had large congregations and Dr. Peterson preached a highly interesting sermon.

Bishop Granbery preached at Ashland Sunday what was pronounced by all who heard him—a grand sermon. His subject was the parable of the sower.

The Baptists.

Dr. J. C. Hilden preached at the First Baptist church in the morning for the pastor, Dr. Cooper, who is out of the city.

The congregation of the Second Baptist church were treated to an excellent sermon home for several weeks, was at home Sunday, and preached to his congregation in the morning and was greeted by a full church.

He will leave for Washington this week, and will preach for three successive Sundays in that city.

Church Notes.

Rev. Jabez Hall, pastor of the Seventh-street Christian church, preached Sunday evening at the Third church, whose pastor is away on a visit.

The Union Methodist prayer-meeting was held at Broad-street church last evening. Rev. P. A. Peterson conducted the services, and Dr. George G. Jones made an interesting talk on the subject appointed for the meeting. "Frayer for more Spiritual Power for all our Preschers."

The meeting to-night will be held at Claystreet church at 8:15 o'clock. The subject will be, "Prayer for a higher estimate of Spfritual things for all our People," Dr. Tudor will conduct the services.

The Rev. Paul L. Menzel, of St. John's German church, has for some time past been preaching a series of sermons on the life and work of the Apostle Paul, and last Sunday morning took for his subject, "Paul before Agrippa." Mr. Menzel is a powerful and effective speaker and this series of discourses is attracting large congregations. The choir which has rendered such effective service during the past year under the leadership of Professor Ide has distanded until September 1st, and in the mean time a male quartet will probably furnish the music. Sunday morning Mr. Charles H. Phillips sang a beautiful tenor solo, "Come unto to me" by Danks. The services at this church will be continued during the remainder of the summer.

Father Julius Pole, O. S. B., of North Carolina, who is a guest of Father Willibald Baumgardner, celebrated High Mass at St. Mary's church Sunday and preached a highly interesting sermon on the subject of death.
